Member of the Planning Committee for the Center for the Study of Ethics and Human Values

- (January, 2002-November 2003), I worked as one of five core committee members to develop the concept for a university-wide ethics center, to convince key faculty and university administrators of the project, and to secure funding.
- Approval of this Center and three years of initial funding was secured in April 2003.
- During May-July 2002, I developed and spearheaded a program of interdisciplinary faculty grants as a way of garnering interest and support for the emerging Center. Expectations were exceeded for both the number of applicants and the number of programs funded. Funded programs can be viewed at <http://humanvalues.wustl.edu/fg20022003.htm>
