

AESTHETIC INVESTIGATIONS

Published on behalf of the Dutch Association of Aesthetics

Call for articles and essays, 2016 onward

Editor in Chief

ROB VAN GERWEN

Affiliation

UTRECHT UNIVERSITY

CALL FOR CONTRIBUTIONS

(Down for an introduction of the journal)

Call for Guest Editors

We seek guest editors for special issues to solicit approx. 4 papers on a theme (for Articles, under review regime). Some of the themes are already specified, see below, but we also solicit themes for future special issues. Do not hesitate to contact us with a proposal specifying the necessity and fruitfulness of the theme that you want to propose, and, perhaps, suggesting a guest editor.

We also seek guest editors for Arts & Artists, (approx. 4 papers). The editorial board assists with reviewing the contributions. Your selection of contributions may be in line with your own research activities.

estigations
tion of Aesthetics

(Mark specific deadlines for Articles)

Calls for Articles (7500 words max., reviewed anonymously)

Mark specific deadlines for Articles

We welcome articles addressing questions about art and aesthetics. We particularly solicit contributions in upcoming issues of Aesthetic Investigations on the following themes.

Volume 2:2

(deadline for submission: March 15 2017):

What is authentic about restoration? Guest editor: ...

Many seem to agree that restoration generally means restoring to “normal use”, not to “original conditions”. Where does that leave the authenticity, and traceability of the artist’s achievement? We welcome discussions of the laws and criteria in use in the practice of art restoration.

Volume 3:1

(deadline for submission: August 15 2017):

Is there truth in fiction? (guest editor: Arthur Cools)

Can fiction be dismissed as irrelevant flight from reality, comparable to bungee jumping?

Volume 3:2

(deadline for submission: February 15 2018):

Is all art performed? (guest editor: Sue Spaid)

Can we think of stable artworks such as paintings and books in terms of performance? Or does this notion apply only to the so-called performative arts, like music, theatre, danse? What consequences, if any, should our answer to this question have for the nature of artistic merit, and, hence, aesthetic evaluation?

Volume 4:1

(deadline for submission: August 15 2018):

How to conceive of the relation between a film and the world it presents?

(guest editor: Rob van Gerwen)

How best to conceive of the relation between a film and the world it presents? Which roles are played by the camera; is it transparently presenting a god's eye point of view? How do audiences know how to understand an ellipsis in editing? What is told in between shots?

Volume 4:2

(deadline for submission: February 15, 2019):

Empirical aesthetics. (guest editor: ...)

What are the philosophical limitations or benefits of empirical approaches to aesthetic issues, such as neuro-aesthetics, evolutionary aesthetics, psychological aesthetics, or statistic approaches? What sense does it make to art criticism to establish assumed causes for our aesthetic judgements? What should be the consequence of successful empirical approaches?

(Mark specific deadlines for Arts & Artists)

Calls for short papers in Arts & Artists (3000 words max.)

Contributions to the Arts & Artists-section are not reviewed anonymously, and should not normally exceed 3000 words. For our Arts & Artists section we welcome short texts addressing questions about artists and their art. We particularly solicit papers attempting to initiate or refresh aesthetic discussion in our journal on the following themes:

Ongoing theme for Arts & Artists essays:

Which philosophical problem(s) do you feel you are dealing with in your art today? This may be expanded to: Which philosophical problem(s) is artist X dealing with in their art today?

Volume 2:2 (deadline for submission: June 15 2017), Guest Editor ... :
Is a work of art by definition a work of fiction, or are the materials used enough proof of a work's truth? Is there truth in fiction? Is art comparable to bungee jumping, or does it automatically have a claim to truth?

Investigations
Journal of Aesthetics

(Mark specific deadlines for Fresh)

Calls for short papers in Fresh (3500 words max.)

Mark specific deadlines for Fresh

Contributions to the Fresh section are not reviewed anonymously, and should not normally exceed 3500 words. For our Fresh section we welcome short texts addressing questions about art and aesthetics. We particularly solicit papers attempting to initiate or refresh aesthetic discussion in our journal on the following themes:

Ongoing theme for Fresh essays:

Why ... aesthetics / Why aesthetic ... (author to fill in the dots.)

What is your conception of aesthetics? Aesthetic Investigations requests philosophical responses (of no more than 3000 words) to our open-ended discussion on "Why ... Aesthetics", inviting aestheticians to defend anything from evolutionary aesthetics, the reduction of aesthetics to the philosophy of perception, the tendency toward neuro-aesthetics, the search for wonder, the focus on surprise, or the objections to any of these.

Volume 2:2 (deadline for submission: June 15 2017):

How do you view art's role in society?

Volume 3:1 (deadline for submission: September 15 2017):

The unaesthetic in contemporary art.

Volume 3:2 (deadline for submission: March 15 2018):

The aesthetic experience of the photographic image.

Volume 4:1 (deadline for submission: September 15 2018):

Is all art performed? Can we think of stable artworks such as paintings and books in terms of performance? Or does this notion apply only to the so-called performative arts, like music, theatre, dance? What consequences, if any, should our answer to this question have for the nature of artistic merit, and, hence, aesthetic evaluation?

Volume 4:2 (deadline for submission: March 15 2019):

How to conceive of the relation between a film and the world it presents?

Volume 5:1 (deadline for submission: September 15 2019):

What are the philosophical limitations of empirical approaches to aesthetic issues, such as neuro-aesthetics, evolutionary aesthetics, psychological aesthetics, or statistic approaches? What sense does it make to art criticism to establish assumed causes for our aesthetic judgements? What should be the consequence of successful empirical approaches?

INTRODUCING THE JOURNAL

Aesthetic Investigations is an international journal for aesthetics, appearing twice a year. It is Open Access and anonymously reviewed. The third issue is scheduled to appear Summer 2016.¹ Aesthetic Investigations is published on behalf of the Dutch Association of Aesthetics (the Netherlands Genootschap voor Esthetica, est. 1997).

Our interest is with the present. The history of aesthetics is discussed for its pertinence for contemporary debates. The aim of Aesthetic Investigations is to develop contemporary debates in philosophical aesthetics, and initiate new ones—and to do this from any viable angle.

We adhere to the view that communication is possible at all levels, but do not assume that all philosophers speak the same language. We start by letting all philosophies speak in their own tongue, allowing philosophers to clarify their points using their own philosophical jargon. The clarification, it is our hope, is what will bring about the conversation. Let us all be clear — in our own terms.

The journal encourages philosophical discussion amongst philosophers, humanities researchers and critics, of all the arts; as well as those interested in the aesthetics of the everyday. We welcome discussion about the norms of success and correctness at stake in the various disciplines; about the phenomenology of the appreciative experience of all the art forms, and of particular exemplary works and situations. Aesthetic Investigations also encourages debates about philosophical issues regarding one or the other of the art forms; the impact of works of art on their public, political, ethical, cultural context, and of these contexts on the works; the ontology of art, and their definition, and so on.

¹Our predecessor journal, then bilingual, Esthetica. Tijdschrift voor Kunst en Filosofie, 2001-2015, is archived at <http://www.estheticatijdschrift.nl>.

Aesthetic Investigations encourages reports of artistic research activities—distinguishing between the material scrutiny done while making a work and the research preceding such scrutiny. The Arts & Artists-section is devoted to the contribution of artistic scrutiny and artistic research and includes art-critical discussion, interviews with artists, and patrons, as well as interviews with philosophers of art. This rubric also allows criticism of articles in the article-section. Criticism of articles from other journals shall count as articles.

THE THREE SECTIONS

1. Articles

Articles should not normally exceed 7,500 words. Our website facilitates that articles be submitted in anonymised form, for the sake of anonymous reviewing, and that biographical details and a 150 words abstract are provided in a separate file. Pictures to be included, are delivered as separate files (indicate clearly in the text where they should go). Copyright clearance is the author's responsibility.

2. Arts & Artists

Of course, arts and artists are part of the conversations in the philosophies of the arts. We encourage critics to discuss the philosophical aspects of artists' works; artists to write about their own work, or about the works of others. We encourage philosophers to talk to artists about their works, and so on.

The Arts & Artists-section is edited by a guest editor in co-operation with the editorial board—the section is not peer-reviewed. Contributions to the Arts & Artists-section should not normally exceed 3000 words and should include an abstract of no more than 100 words. We welcome the inclusion of pictures, which are eligible for publication as “the image of the journal” on the home page of an issue.

3. Fresh

Contributions to the Fresh section are not peer-reviewed and should not normally exceed 3500 words. They are meant to discuss in a slightly looser form new issues that, authors think, are ignored in mainstream aesthetics. This is typically the place where fresh thoughts are introduced in the debates, through pithy essays.

Translations

All texts submitted should be original, but we allow translations into English of articles and contributions to the Arts & Artists-section, with the proviso that the quality of the English is the author’s responsibility.

Editorial Board

Editor in chief: Rob van Gerwen, Utrecht University editor@aestheticinvestigations.eu

Editor: Sue Spaid, Brussels
articles@aestheticinvestigations.eu

Reviews Editor: Arthur Cools, University of Antwerp
articles@aestheticinvestigations.eu

Editor Arts & Artists-section: variable (apply if you are interested) artsartists@aestheticinvestigations.eu

Assistant to the editor: Jurry Ekkelboom, Nijmegen info@aestheticinvestigations.eu

Board of Advisors

- Mauro Carbone (Université de Lyon 3)
- Paul Crowther (National University of Ireland, Galway)
- Josef Früchtl (University of Amsterdam)
- Christopher Fynsk (University of Aberdeen)
- Jason Gaiger (Oxford University, the John Ruskin School of Art and Drawing)
- Carolyn Korsmeyer (State University of New York at Buffalo)
- Thierry Lenain (Université Libre de Bruxelles)
- Jerrold Levinson (University of Maryland)

- Derek Matravers (The Open University)
- Graham McFee (University of Brighton, UK (em.) and California State University Fullerton, USA.)
- Jos de Mul (Erasmus University Rotterdam)
- Monique Roelofs (Hampshire College)
- Yuriko Saito (Rhode Island School of Design)
- Martin Seel (Goethe Universität, Frankfurt)
- Richard Shusterman (Florida Atlantic University)
- Paul Taylor (Penn State University, Pennsylvania)
- Renée van de Vall (Maastricht University)
- Lambert Wiesing (Friedrich-Schiller-Universität Jena)
- Edward Winters (London)

And further . . .

- ISSN: 2352-2704
- Contributions are published following the Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 License (CC BY 4.0):
<http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/>
- Texts to be submitted should either be in L^AT_EX (and B_IB_TE_X) or in Word (doc or docx), or RTF.
- Aesthetic Investigations will be widely indexed.
- Aesthetic Investigations is hosted at:
<http://www.aestheticinvestigations.eu>

